HELP BEAUTIFY GRAYLING
BY DESTROYING WEEDS

Dear Editor:
How many people in Grayling ever take a look around them and notice the profusion of various weeds? What must outsiders think when coming into town, from any direction, and also in town, when they take a look at the business places weeds surrounding some of these, even between buildings and sidewalks?
If there is a manpower shortage, why can't the owner or business man (or woman) take a few minutes and pull some of the weeds that really are eye-sores—which can be seen anywhere, any time.

Along U.S. 27, take a look at the old lumber yards, on both sides of the pavement this is a disgrace to any town—wherever you look sweet clover greets the eye. This is one of the worst weeds anywhere, and the only way to get rid of it is to pull it up, body and soul. The corner near the light plant—wouldn't it add to the beauty of the plant and premises if the owner would clean it up? And the same applies to every place where the weeds grow year after year.

If no men are to be found for such work, there are lots of boys in town who would and could clean up almost any place. Hire them by the job for so much, and when a neat and clean job is done, pay them well for their work.

—A Citizen.

CONK'S COL.

Some time ago we mentioned that Sheriff John Papadick caught a 19-inch brown trout in the South Branch. John told us we forgot to add three-fourths of an inch to the length of the fish so we here add it. The actual length of that trout, and John says he measured it exactly, was 19 3/4 inches. We, as a fellow disciple of Ike Walton, take his word for it.

The biggest trout we have taken this season was only 11 inches long. Maybe we didn't fish in the right place, or used the outmoded kind of lure and incantations. Maybe we'd better talk along with John.

At Melan and wife Laurenc, of Versailles, Ohio, came to our weekup Monday evening. Al, who has a Ph. G. after his name, is the leading mixer of diverse drugs and medicines for everything from belly-ache to St. Vitus Dance, hang-overs, and what not, down in Versailles, the leading town of Darke County. In that county they produce the finest tobacco in the world, or so it is claimed, and in Versailles is located the third largest overall factory in the world—the Buckeye Overall Co. Well, we made our first fishing pilgrimage to Michigan back in 1925, with Al (or Mac, as they call him down in Versailles), Laurenc and their little son, Paul. The trip was in our old Model T Ford, and there wasn't so much of paved roads in Michigan in those days, but the gravel roads were good. It took us about two days to get to Lake St. Helen. We had our camping paraphernalia along, and that old

Ford sure carried a heavy load.
Caught our biggest Northern pike that trip, in the lake—it was 38 inches long. We had no scale to get an exact idea of its weight. Mrs. Mac had a tent to herself; Al, Paul and I slept in our big tent. One night Mrs.
Al woke the camp up at the un-godly hour of 2 G. M. Al, who isn't afraid of anything, alive or super-natural, grabbed his .22-calibre bean shooter and ran to the rescue. He dashed into Laurence tent, expecting to find it had been invaded by a bear. But it turned out that some gophers had been making a friendly call.
Al and Laurenc have been coming up Grayling way for about 20 years now. Their little son, who so loved the North, too, died about 17 years ago. Al and Laurence are thinking of locating in Grayling one of these days, to be near the Great Outdoors, and, as Al says, "the best fishing in the State of Michigan!" We hope they realize their ambition. Al's opinion of this section is also our own. Grayling and Crawford County are really a Paradise for one who loves Nature—folks who want to get away from the crowded trails, away from the crowded urban sections into the wide open places, where the streams and lakes are unpolluted and crystal clear, teeming with fish, where the forests are almost unbroken—around the settled sections, and the air is pure.
This is the place to LIVE!

Trout season of 1944 closes on Labor Day—next Monday. The fishing for this species has been good, but natural bait seems to have taken more of the 'specks' and 'browns' than flies or other artificial lures.

From next Monday, on, the bass and Great Northern pike—"I" come in for more attention, and the fall season finds the bronze-backs and pike at their best. The lethargy of hot weather overcomes the anglers' offerings. We note that bass (also pike) fishing is generally off during July and August, in the lakes.

Forty Hours' Adoration At St. Mary's

Forty Hours' Adoration was held at St. Mary's Church beginning with High Mass on Sunday and closing Tuesday evening.
The services consisted of Mass each morning and devotions each evening, with Solemn Closing Tuesday, participated in by several priests from surrounding parishes.

The Forty Hours' Adoration is a devotion to the Blessed Sacrament solemnly exposed on the altar, in memory of the forty hours during which the sacred body of Jesus was in the sepulcher. It is held annually, and a special time is designated for each church in the diocese.
This is a very beautiful service and especially the Solemn Closing, when the several priests chant the Litany of the Saints, recite the prayer for peace and join in the procession, closing with Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Cassidy Lake An Honor Penal Colony

Like a postman who prefers a 10-mile hike for a holiday, a group of Michigan newspapermen journeyed recently to the Cassidy Lake "honor camp" of the state corrections commission, located in Washtenaw and Jackson counties.

Then the newsmen innocently stumbled upon a series of news stories.
It was "one of those things" that makes Michigan so interesting.
Instance:

First, the escape of Norman Mundt, a life-term inmate of the member of Jackson state prison band which had been detailed to Cassidy Lake for the day. Mundt was captured in 24 hours. It seems that he had selected, as his haven of refuge, a nearby farmhouse owned by a Detroit policeman. Irony itself.

Second, a significant experiment in modern penology whereby 83 inmates from Jackson state prison—36 of them being first offenders and 47 others being about to receive parole because of good behavior—have been according partial freedom at an attractive camp that is entirely without walls or armed guards.

And third, a study in contrast between two groups—six delinquent youths assigned to the camp by probate judges, and 83 selected inmates from the main prison at Jackson.

The escape of Norman Mundt turned out to be one of the interesting incidents of the day. It was the unheralded, indirect result of a program of special entertainment which had been arranged by the Corrections Commission for the benefit of visiting newsmen.

The program consisted of drills by the Michigan State Zouaves, a group of prison inmates, garb-ed in the traditional military costumes of the original French zouaves—red fez hats with black tassels, red jackets, bright blue knickerbockers, white blouses with white sash, white stockings and white shoes.

The zouaves stomped through precision maneuvers, carrying wood rifles. It was a splendid performance. . . .

Next was a group of entertainers—a 15-piece band that did its stuff equally as well with popular dance numbers as with classical pieces; a xylophone drummer-fiddler who had murdered somebody in Detroit and was sent up for life; four Negro singers, called the "Swanee Quartet"; and four hill-billy singers known musically on the radio as the "Arkansas Ramblers".

The generous efforts of these entertainers were given a night club setting—and most unfortunately and unfairly so—by a breezy, flippant master of ceremonies, one Bob Hart, formerly of a deceased Jackson night club, whose fashion ensemble included these nifty effects: Bright yellow nylon sports shirt, a flamboyantly bright red tie, and a stiff straw sailor. He announced the numbers and wisecracked a few funny stories.

By the way, the 15-piece band was reduced to 14 pieces when Mundt took a walk.

Mundt had been sentenced to the Jackson prison for life, following conviction in 1938 for committing robbery while armed. At Cassidy Lake, where the blue sky and green trees and the nearby placid lake gave him the inspiration, Mundt just disappeared when all three guards were not looking.

Warden Jackson had just concluded a luncheon talk at the dining hall, voicing a prophecy that were the walls of the Jackson prison to fall due to an earthquake, most of the prisoners would remain there, awaiting their guards.

It was then that an official entered the hall and handed Jackson a slip of paper. It was about Mundt.

In his futile flight Mundt had broken into a nearby farm-

Letters

from Camp

The U.S.A.A.F. England, 17 August, 1944.

Dear Mr. Schumann:

Please excuse my delay in writing you a letter, but I have been endeavoring to collect necessary material to form one. The problem seems difficult to solve, because nearly everyone has written about England, its people and their customs.

During my stay here in England I have tried to locate Grayling boys. In this respect I have failed, sorry to say. At one AAF station of the 8th U.S.A.A.F. I found the name of S-Sgt. Clayton Anthony in the Red Cross Register.

All the boys over here seem to want to get back home again.
Strange, isn't it? Then many of us are interested in future life and what it will have to offer a service man that will definitely be at a disadvantage, particularly those of units other than the Air Corps.

Perhaps I could tell you about my experience as a mechanic on a mobile crew engaged in repair of damaged aircraft. One day our unit was dispatched to repair a damaged fighter at another base. When we arrived at our destination, we discovered the ship formerly belonged to an ace.

We could determine this by the number of Jerries painted on the fuselage. When we had completed our job, we called the home base for a pilot. Instead, the ace showed up. He wished to have this plane instead of a new one, because he had several kills with the one we had repaired.

After a pre-flight inspection, he informed us he would "buzz" the field if she flew O.K. He raced down the runway and became airborne and soon out of sight.
Evidently something went wrong —at least we thought so, until we heard a scream of diving wings, followed by the roar of several hundred horsepower as he powered out. Like a cannonball he came. His flight was parallel to the ground, about shoulder high, and headed straight for us.

We "hit the deck" in nothing flat as he shot directly overhead.
There was another surge of power as he "poured on the coal" and spiraled upward, hanging on the prop. That was our reward for work we done, and we did feel good about it, because it was D-Day and he would fly that ship against the Luftwaffe and German ground troops that would perhaps be in our position when we evaded the plane in the field. The only difference is the house and had been welcomed there the next day by its owner, who, of all persons in the world, happened to be a Detroit policeman, Carlton Engstrom. Mundt slugged Engstrom with the handles of a hammer, but was captured a few minutes later by a Chelsea officer. Now he can look forward to solitary confinement.

The experiment at Cassidy Lake was characterized by Dr.
Garrett Heyns, director of the Corrections Commission, to be "one of the most progressive things we have attempted in a long time." Its leader is an understanding man, Lieut. George F. Parrish, himself an orphan, who handles boys with rare patience and intelligence.

Instead of bare prison walls that imply a denial of freedom, Cassidy Lake honor camp is attractive, modern outdoors recreation. Its buildings are of logs, patterned after the federal park architecture of Yellowstone National Park. Camp inmates live in home-like cabins, overlooking the lake and situated among trees.

They attend classes four hours a day for academic education, and another four hours daily for vocational training that is designed to provide them with a useful vocation for the "free world".

Dear Mr. Schumann:

Boy, this sure was my lucky day. We went ashore today to look for some of the fellows from Grayling, and guess what happened! Boy, O Boy! I first found Capt. L. Knibbs. As we were talking, I told him that Jim Weiss was around here some place, but couldn't find out where. After we had a nice visit, I forgot about telling Leonard about Jim. When it was time to come back to the ship, Leonard said he would drive me back, but first he would have to drive up the roads a ways, and see a fellow he knew. Well, we drove to camp and asked if they had a fellow by the name of Weiss around. They said they did, and took us over to a car—and guess what happened? Outpopped Jim!

Boy! Were we glad to see him?
Leonard didn't even know Jim was up there, and they were only about a mile apart. Boy! then we really had a full session.

I asked Jim if he had shot any Japs, and as usual he blushed, said he had. He sure told us some good stories about his adventures.

Tomorrow they are both coming down to the ship for supper.
I also ran across Bob Welsh about a week ago. He also is in good health. We had quite a time together—the best you can have in New Guinea, anyway.
Ha, ha.

I hope to see Ed Chalker next week. I missed him by only about 500 yards once before.
I guess this was my lucky day, because after I got back to the ship I had 13 letters. That was a day worth waiting for.

I hear Don Peterson is back up here in New Guinea, so I'll try to see him also. I hope I can!
Well, I believe this is all for Another Tribute To

The North Country
And The Beautiful
AuSable River

Dr. V. L. Garbutt of Detroit, for many years a summer resident on the AuSable River, gets reminiscent about the happy vacations spent in Northern Michigan, in the following narrative: "April 30th, 1911, we made the first trip, by train, of course, and arrived in Grayling at 5:30 o'- clock. Jess Schoonover and his buckboard met us and took us down to Recreation, a trip of 10 miles, with no cushions on the seats.

"Just 34 years of fishing on the AuSable—what more could a man want? Forty-three years practicing medicine in Detroit never could have been accomplished had it not been for my vacations at Grayling, where men are men and women are proud of it. The fun we used to have! One time we put Hawk and Tee Hanson together in an electric-wired bed, and they thought a snake had bit them; so the bums got even by putting two small fish into our live box and then called the game warden. Well, it cost us $8.75 each ... bad 'cess to them! But, did we have fun!

"Now we are leaving the 'old AuSable' for sunny California. It is surely our hope to be back in 1946 for most our old friends: Earl Madsen, George Griffith, Major Hauxhurst, Abe Joseph, Doctors Keyport and Clippert, Ad Lewis, and the rest of God's chosen people."

Numerous farewell dinners they wish to extend an invita-

Beach, California.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"The more I read about it, Judge, the more I realize the tactics and requirements of this war are as different from the one I fought 25 years ago as night is from day."

"Yes, and I can give you an example of how true that is, Fred. In World War I the chief uses of alcohol produced for war purposes were found in smokeless powder, medical supplies and chemical warfare materials. In this war the need for this product is far more vital because it is also used as a fuel to propel torpedoes, to make shatterproof glass for airplane windshields and instrument covers, to make lacquers used in camouflaging equipment and as a base for synthetic rubber needed for tires, gas masks, parachute equipment and dozens of other things. "Every time I think of it, Fred, I realize how fortunate we were in having a beverage distilling industry in existence when war broke out... ready and eager to convert 100% to the production of this critically needed war product. I'm mighty sure bootleggers wouldn't have been of much help."

Because of the present critical tire shortage...

Please DON'T TRAVEL OVER LABOR DAY!

In the whole period of the war this Labor Day will be the most critical for transportation. Intercity buses simply cannot carry all the people who will need or want to travel—because hundreds of these buses are temporarily standing idle, without tires.

Your help is needed in meeting this crisis. Even if your Labor Day trip is highly essential, postpone it a few days if you possibly can. If you must go, please be prepared for possible delays and unavoidable crowding.

Nothing would give us greater pleasure than to serve you now—but the urgent needs of war come first. We know you will understand and cooperate as you have always done.

We feel sure that it won't be long until all our buses are back in service. With a proud war record behind them, and an urgent job of transporting manpower still ahead, America's buses must be kept rolling!

Hundreds of buses needed in war effort are today standing idle due to lack of tires

Water glass can be obtained from any drug store at a cost of about 25 cents a quart. A quart mixed with about nine quarts of water that has been boiled and then cooled, is enough to cover about 15 dozen eggs for storage. The eggs can be kept in a clean earthen crock or wooden tub of about six-gallon capacity, in a cool place.

How Different Will be Post-war Homes?

Matt Dooley, our local carpenter, has been showing us architect's drawings of the kind of post-war houses that we're going to live in. Some of them look like squared-off dominoes; some are streamlined like they were going to fly. And they're all filled with fancy things like air-conditioning and what-not.

"Sure change our home life!" Matt says importantly.

"Shuck," says Dan Mason, "it isn't the house, or the location, or the money in it, that make up your home life."

"What is it then?" says Matt.

"It's the little things," says Dan. "Like a well-worn chair before the fire—and a good book—and a friendly glass of beer after a hard day's work. Little things, that are a part of living."

From where I sit, Dan's absolutely right. And I think the men who dream of home from overseas agree—that it's the small, familiar pleasures, that add up to home.
